

ALUMNUS OF THE MONTH

DECEMBER 2025

Kevin Moonuparayil

Self-Published Author & Creative Writing Scholar

This December, we are proud to celebrate Kevin as our Alumnus of the Month—a young writer whose passion, discipline, and creativity have already set him apart on his literary journey.

Kevin is the self-published author of the science-fiction novel The Last Chimaera, a bold and imaginative debut that showcases his talent for world-building, character development, and speculative storytelling. His work reflects a deep fascination with the future of humanity, identity, and the boundaries between technology and nature.

Currently, Kevin is further honing his craft as a Creative Writing and English Literature student at the University of East Anglia, one of the UK's leading universities for literary study. Immersed in an environment that has nurtured some of the nation's most celebrated authors, he continues to refine his voice and experiment with new narrative ideas.

Before university, Kevin studied English Literature, Sociology, and Media at A-Level—subjects that fed his understanding of storytelling, social worlds, and the power of communication. These disciplines enriched his writing style, giving him a unique lens through which to craft complex, exciting narratives.

A Writer Inspired

Kevin's motivations extend beyond academic study. His writing—and his approach to life—is guided by the quotes he lives by:

"There is no greater love than to lay down one's life for one's friend." – John 15:13

A reminder of sacrifice, loyalty, and the depth of human connection—values that often echo through his characters and plots.

"Bounce to the beat of your own drums."

A personal mantra that reflects Kevin's commitment to creativity, individuality, and the courage to forge his own path.

Looking Ahead

Kevin's journey as a writer is only just beginning. With The Last Chimaera marking an impressive start and his university studies pushing his creative boundaries even further, he is an alumnus whose future is bright, bold, and full of possibility.

We celebrate Kevin not only for his achievements so far but for the passion and persistence that continue to drive him forward. His story is a reminder that imagination—paired with dedication—can lead to extraordinary places.

Congratulations, Kevin, our Alumnus of the Month for December.

We can't wait to see what you write next.
