Deji Fayefunmi

HR Management LACE Partners

Between 2018 and 2020, Deji studied Business, English Language, and Geography at St Thomas More, developing a strong foundation in analytical thinking, communication, and real-world problem solving. These strengths led them to the University of Nottingham, where he pursued an MSci in Environmental Science, graduating in 2024.

Today, he is thriving at LACE Partners, the UK's leading HR management consultancy. His role places them at the centre of complex client challenges, involving extensive client interaction, data analysis, and strategic problem solving. The combination of scientific training and people-focused consultancy work has allowed them to bridge the gap between evidence-based thinking and organisational transformation.

When asked about the mindset that guides him, he shared his favourite piece of advice — a philosophy shaped by both setbacks and successes:

"Trust the process."
Commit to the journey, have faith in your goals, and recognise that challenges are often the stepping stones to even greater achievements.

His story is a reminder that the path from sixth form to career is rarely linear — but with perseverance, curiosity, and confidence in the process, each step opens new opportunities.

PROFILE:

NAME: Deji Fayefunmi

JOB: Data Analysis and Client Interaction

SUBJECTS studied at A LEVEL: Geography, Business and English Language

YEAR left STM: 2020

University of Nottingham

MSci in Environmental